

Using Athens Login

You only need to use Athens login for journals off campus. Your Athens userid and password are your usual RVC userid and password. On campus a different authentication method is used. Some journals can't be accessed off campus (mostly published by Highwire), this should be stated in the SFX access screen and there may be an alternative access shown.

This is the Athens login screen that you will get to from most publishers sites.

Followed by,

Generally when you have logged in you will go back to the journal page you started from, sometimes you will have to look for the journal again. Once you are logged into Athens you should stay logged in while your internet session is active on your computer. So for each publisher you will need to go to the Athens login but once you click on it you shouldn't need to login again.

Once you are logged into a journal through Athens, you should get Royal Veterinary College and/or the RVC logo on the screen. For Wiley journals you should also get the open padlock symbol. For Elsevier Science Direct journal, you will get this green page symbol next to the journal articles .

This list does not cover all publishers, but it does include the main ones, if you have any problems please contact library@rvc.ac.uk.
